Dear Sir,

I'd like to suggest the government to formulate policies favouring inbound working holiday scheme for absorbing expatriate ICT workers to promote knowledge exchange between Hong Kong and other developed countries. Also more distance ICT learning courses/resources provided by accredited technology institutions overseas should be introduced to our education market in Hong Kong. For secondary and tertiary education in Hong Kong, ICT awareness and introductory training should be endeavoured widely at an earlier stage, better with various regular joint-school activities as well as inter-school competitions. To parallel the trendy fad of mobile app popularity, software engineering should become a focussed redeveloping industry enhanced by more relevant nurturing efforts/aids, financing, R&D support, knowledge infrastructure and manpower supply.

Thanks for your consideration.
