

Hi,

On page 5 of Public Consultation

Leaflet <http://www.digital21.gov.hk/eng/relatedDoc/download/2014D21S-leaflet.pdf>, stays clearly that "Paperless Solutions and Collaborative Platforms" is one of the targets which the Hong Kong government is aiming to promote in the coming future.

Recently, Singapore Government is already introduced the Productivity and Innovation Credit (PIC) scheme which benefit Singapore's local companies using more IT and Automation Equipment, as well as cloud computing or services. More details can be found at http://www.iras.gov.sg/irasHome/page04.aspx?id=13838#Acquisition_or_Leasing_of_PIC_IT_and_Automation_Equipment (Cloud computing or Paperless Solutions and Collaborative Platforms is also falling in to the PIC scope, please refer to Q16 of FAQs).

Instead of focusing on the office automation of the HK Government Office, I wondering if the Hong Kong Government could add something similar to Singapore PIC scheme under the Digital21 Strategy, which will promote and increase the incentive of companies in Hong Kong adopting Cloud / Paperless Solutions and Collaborative Platforms in the coming future.

Best Regards,

Raymond Kwan

Director

PEOBASE - The base for people business